

A Basic Civil War Library

A Bibliographical Essay

By Ralph G. Newman and E. B. Long

"WHAT SHALL I read next?" This question, the late Douglas Southall Freeman said, was the one most frequently asked by newcomers to the literary adventure of Civil War history. Dr. Freeman answered, in part, the oft-repeated query with his excellent volume The South to Posterity, now unfortunately out of print. A series of articles in the quarterly publication Civil War History attempted to explore the problems of a Union bookshelf, and Dr. James I. Robertson, Jr., executive director of the United States Civil War Centennial Commission, is currently working on a book devoted to this subject.

It has been estimated that there are now more than 40,000 titles — books or pamphlets — relating in some manner or other to the Civil War. This total includes books on military, naval, and political subjects, biographies of the major and minor figures of the time, as well as fiction, poetry, and drama. The titles listed in this article are those the compilers consider essential to a basic Civil War library. With these books a library — private or institutional — will be equipped for the exploration, with some degree of scholarly exactness, of that most exciting, yet most confusing, period of American history. Obviously the most difficult problem encountered by the compilers of this list was that of selection. Because of space limitations, fiction, poetry, and drama are not included, though we willingly concede the great influence of works such as Uncle Tom's Cabin, The Red Badge of Courage, John Brown's Body, Gone with the Wind, Long Remember, Bugles Blow No More, and Abe Lincoln in Illinois.

We have attempted to list all the major Civil War titles, though there are no doubt many omissions. Occasionally a volume of lesser merit is listed because it is the only one available on the subject or is the best of several mediocre works. Such books are included, however, only when the subject could not be overlooked; we hope that a better book in every such field will ultimately be written.

Many major works concerning the Civil War which are not yet available but have been scheduled for publication will be important additions to the basic Civil War library. These include the Collected Writings of Ulysses S. Grant, edited by John Y. Simon and sponsored by the Ulysses S. Grant Association; the Collected Writings of Jefferson Davis, being prepared under the supervision of Frank E. Vandiver; the Southern Historical Society Papers Index, by George F. Markham, Jr.; The North to Posterity, by James I. Robertson, Jr.; the Centennial History of Illinois in the Civil War, by Victor Hicken and Harold Sinclair, under the sponsorship of the Civil War Centennial Commission of Illinois; and the Impact Series and a Guide to the Literature of the Civil War, both under the sponsorship of the United States Civil War Centennial Commission. Many major, multivolume works have been partially completed. These include Allan Nevins's Ordeal of the Union, Bruce Catton's Centennial History of the Civil War, and Shelby Foote's The Civil War. The volumes completed are listed herein.

The basic Civil War library suggested below is divided into fifteen general classifications:

- I. BASIC REFERENCE WORKS
- II. GENERAL HISTORIES
- III. MAPS, ATLASES
- IV. PHOTOGRAPHIC COLLECTIONS, PICTURE BOOKS
- V. BIBLIOGRAPHICAL AND LITERARY STUDIES
- VI. THE CONFEDERACY
- VII. MILITARY STUDIES, BATTLES AND CAMPAIGNS
- VIII. NAVAL OPERATIONS
- IX. WEAPONS AND UNIFORMS
- X. FOREIGN AFFAIRS
- XI. ILLINOIS
- XII. PERSONAL NARRATIVES, DIARIES, AND LETTERS
- XIII. BIOGRAPHIES OF OUTSTANDING CIVIL WAR PERSONALITIES
- XIV. PERIODICALS
- XV. SPECIAL STUDIES, MONOGRAPHS, MISCELLANEOUS WORKS

Within these classifications titles are arranged alphabetically by the authors' surnames, except where the title is more important than the name of the author or editor and in the biographical section where the arrangement is generally according to subject, with a few obvious and understandable exceptions. Parentheses () are used to indicate comments by the authors on the content of the volume or edition. The edition listed is the earliest, unless the work has been superseded by a better edition, in which case both editions are recorded; paper-bound editions are also listed if currently in print and known to the compilers.

All titles appear in standard form as to punctuation and capitalization. Dates appear in arabic numerals though they may appear on the title page of the book in roman. Brackets [] are used to indicate the publication date if it does not appear on the title page of the book.

NEW EDITION, with Introduction by Henry Steele Commager, 5 volumes, reproduced from the original edition by photographing the pictures and text, New York: Thomas Yoseloff, [1957]. (Often called "Miller-Brady," this is the great photographic source work for the war. The Barnard and Gardner volumes are so excessively rare that few collectors or institutions have copies, and the reprints of those works are inadequate. This work, however, was widely distributed. The text has many errors, but the photographs are superb.)
- PRATT, FLETCHER, Civil War in Pictures, New York: Henry Holt, [1955]. (This work is illustrated with drawings and other illustrative material from the files of Harper's Weekly and Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper.)

It is interesting to note that within a year of the end of the war, this work listed 6,073 titles, including pamphlets and periodical articles.)

Relating to the War of the Rebellion 1861-1866*, Philadelphia: [Privately printed], 1914. (Issued in a limited edition of 300 copies, this is one of the most useful Civil War bibliographical tools. Though it possesses all of the imperfections of the work of an amateur, the Nicholson Collection was so great that the mere listing of the titles in any order is of great use to students and collectors, and Colonel Nicholson did much more than that. He indicated the number of copies printed, whenever the information was available to him, and listed the many variant printings in this catalogue, which comprises a volume of 1,022 pages.)
